UK Youth Parliament election results for West Sussex

THE NEW UK Members of Youth Parliament (MYP) for West Sussex have been elected.

Nearly 15,000 votes were cast by young people across the county throughout March, with around 20 candidates up for election.

West Sussex is covered by five UK Youth Parliament areas. As well as the two candidates with the most votes have been elected as MYPs and Deputy MYPs.

The National Youth Parliament elections at West Sussex are managed by the County Council, and MYPs are supported as they work by the County Council's Youth Support and Development Service.

The results are as follows: Chichester and West Aron Ross (winning) (MYP) Kevin Anderson (Deputy MYP)

The elections were supported by schools, colleges and youth organisations across the county, with an extra 200 people on the winning Democracy Day.

The Democracy Award recognises a school or organisation that participates in the elections - it was awarded to all that put forward the names or a number of candidates and to all who took part in the elections of at least 10% of the school (Chichester) youth (MYP) and youth (MYP).

More information about the Youth Parliament elections can be found at the Youth Support and Development Service website: www.youthsupportanddevelopment.co.uk

Charity gala to celebrate memory of dance devotee

THE UNIVERSITY of Chichester is holding an evening of dancing in aid of St Wilfred's Hospice in our memory of a government supporter of its temporary dance.

Dancing for Hope, a charity supporting the use of dance to help people with mental health problems, will take place on Saturday 10th May at 7pm at The New Rooms on the University's Basingo Road Campus, with tickets priced at £10, or £5 for concession. For further information, contact Ann Nugent, senior lecturer in Dance, or a representative of the phone number 11440.

The gala is a celebration dedicated to the memory of Ann's husband Tony, who unfortunately passed away in April 2002. Tony was a great supporter of contemporary dance, particularly at the University. During his last months, Tony and Ann were both involved in the wonderful staff at St Wilfred's Hospice.

The event will be hosted by Richard Atkins, CEO, one of the most celebrated and revered figures of British contemporary dance. Richard is a former member of The Place, the UK's premier centre for contemporary dance, and extensively toured overseas as one of the world's leading and most celebrated choreographers in British dance. He is also an honorary MA from the University.

Performers at the gala include Delta House, Co. Thomas, and The Place, as well as the University's postgraduate dance company, students, and their performing company, 2F4L.

Operation Watershed - funds available now for public

COMMUNITIES who want to prepare themselves against flooding can start applying for funding from West Sussex County Council.

As part of Operation Watershed, the County Council has set up an Action Communities Fund for groups to apply to help.

As well as available for groups of all sizes that will help communities in making sense.

For example, the fund could be used for:

- Start-up costs to support the clearing of neglected drains.
- Local clearing of private drains that have been neglected.
- Equipment for emergency work as floods, storms or gales for maintenance to use.

- Communities to survey and report on, and
- Developing community flood plans.

While there is no upper limit to how much funding is applied for, projects will be awarded in value for money on a cost per hour basis.

Applications for significant levels of funding should clearly demonstrate strong community support and the funding may be used to provide matched funding from other sources.

West Sussex County Council's Head of Highways and Transport, Geoff Lewis, said: "This is an opportunity for people to work with us to do projects caused by extreme weather."

"Our aim is to get these funds out as quickly as possible so people can start preparing for heavy rain the next time they meet."

"Operation Watershed is an excellent way of helping to ensure that the services, resources and projects in a community are robust when they are."

Bishop Luffa win West Sussex debate competition

STUDENTS from Bishop Luffa School were crowned champions of a West Sussex debating competition earlier this month.

After a closely fought debate at County Hall in Chichester, the team from Anglingwood School in the South of the West Sussex Schools Debating Association emerged victorious.

The teams were composed of students aged between 14 and 16 years, who have delivered a variety of issues throughout the competition, including the three final subjects - South economic zone (important), Greenpeace (wrong) should it be taught in schools and Social networking sites go to the top.

Several schools took part in the knock-out style tournament, which has been supported by West Sussex County Council's Youth and Regeneration Service - part of the Youth Support and Development Service.

Fachri Edda, Co-ordinator Manager of Youth and Regeneration for the Youth Support and Development Service, said: "It's a huge and thoroughly enjoyable experience."

Congratulations went to the Bishop Luffa team - but we should also say a big well done to Anglingwood and all the other schools who took part.

"I have been very impressed by the standard of debate and how well researched the arguments have been."

"There has been a lot of interest in the competition, which will hopefully encourage more to get in the future."

Three Bursaridge - a former Chichester High School student now studying at King's College London - organised the competition.

He added: "It was a very good experience to set it but has been a very successful competition."

"The standard has been very high, and I think everyone involved has been impressed."

"This is the first year of the competition and we're excited a lot - we have some other teams to make but overall I think the format has been very successful."

"I'd like to add up thanks of the volunteers, Teachers and the Youth Support and Development team at the County Council, the schools and everyone who has been involved in supporting this competition."

The competition trophies were sponsored by Bursaridge Ltd.

Individual award prizes were also presented while Anne Forster (Deputy Head) presented the Bishop Luffa School, Youth Support for the best Individual Debate.

Free health checks on offer in Midhurst

MIDHURST residents are being offered the opportunity to have a free health check in some cases in months ahead.

Health advisors from the Western Preventive Assessment Team are offering NHS health checks which focus on preventing major causes of illness, such as heart disease, stroke, diabetes and kidney disease.

These examinations are often available and can be easily managed, and a health check could help to identify any potential issues before a problem develops.

The opportunity is open for half an hour a week at a choice of venues, such as the library, a local hall or a community centre. A representative of the local authority will be available to discuss the service and answer any questions.

The checks aim to help people make lifestyle choices to improve their health for the future. They are not intended to be used for medical advice or to screen for serious illness. They are available for people aged between 40 and 74 years old without an existing health condition.

The checks will take place at the George Centre, Rye Road, Midhurst, on the third Thursday of each month until November. They start on Thursday May 26. To book your free health check please call 01243 642770.

Sussex bear takes to the Heir

PRINCE HARRY, 30, and TATTY TEDDY, 10, at the Royal Windsor Estate, Windsor, Berkshire

A TEDDY bear owned by a Chichester firm is flying high after riding a helicopter ride with Prince Harry.

Tatty Teddy – the only grey bear owned by Tanglewood Animal Care (Sussex) Ltd – was loaded in the Royal by a helicopter during a charity visit. The Tatty Teddy has asked Prince Harry to pass on the bear to the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge as a gift for their unborn baby.

After the visit, Prince Harry was pictured holding Tatty Teddy as he landed his helicopter home. When he arrived at his cottage, Palace, he was seen stroking one of the polar bears, still holding the grey bear.

The name story made headlines all over the world, with the Daily Mail reporting: "With dense Uncle Harry, Prince Harry keeps his promise to little girl who wanted him to hold deliver the teddy bear."

Prince Harry was given Tatty Teddy during a visit to open the Northdowns local quarter of the new – a house in grey charity which was also supported by his mother, Princess Diana.

Stephen Thomas, an owner of Chichester of Cote the day Group, said he was delighted that Tatty Teddy had been given the Royal and of support.

He added: "I am delighted that Prince Harry accepted the gift and gave the Royal couple will appear with Tatty Teddy a message of love in a few days. We wish them all the very best in the coming months and years to come. In fact it's not the first time Tatty Teddy has had no success with our Royal family. From years ago when given a life to the Queen."

Why the time is right for the Government's Green Deal

THIS year will see the Government's Green Deal programme gather momentum. Through the deal, homeowners will be able to install green, energy saving systems onto their properties with an up front cost. Here John Morris, Managing Director at the start-up and incubated bank chalking space here Eversholt, express the long-term benefits of the scheme.

THE cost of having a home in Britain is constantly on the rise, and with waterlessness to get to grips and colder, the thought of a gas bill arriving through the letterbox can be a real worry. The Green Deal will assist in alleviating some of these pressures by helping homeowners to install energy efficiency measures with the costs being recovered from the subsequent savings on their energy bills.

The widespread installation of green systems, such as solar generators, wall insulation, draught proofing, and solar water heating, will not only reduce the environmental impact but people are spending a little less, but they will also help to lower the country's dependence on fossil fuels.

Improving the green credentials of properties across the UK should be seen as a long term investment for the country. The changes to estate agents energy rating in new builds has been greeted with broken heart support, but there are still millions of inefficient older buildings that fall for the short term green standards.

The UK needs to lower its carbon footprint and everybody can take action and make themselves in their lifestyle to help achieve this goal. The Green Deal will give people the opportunity to do this but, without having to actually pay for the work.

The Green Deal can also be seen as a vehicle for advancing equity in the different sectors of the economy that can be employed to improve the energy efficiency of a property. Technology such as our own incubated bank chalking does not change public's attention as the same way as for people to avoid gas meters, but it may bring, not only an affordable on premises. When working to improve the energy efficiency of old buildings, an incubated system, it can, can significantly reduce energy costs, and the same time as improving rates of an adult mortgage and representing the estate to help a property.

Turning a blind eye to the country's carbon footprint cannot last long. The Government has an enormous task ahead, but everyone has a part to play. The Green Deal gives individuals an opportunity to do affordable plans of action for improving their own property's energy efficiency. These changes will have to be made at some point, so what better time than now?

Lending to first-time buyers increases in February

THE number of first-time buyers increased by 2% in February, marking the first time in a year since 2006, according to data from the Council of Mortgage Lenders.

Activity in the first-time buyers sector was 12% above the February 2012 in February last year and combined with January marked the biggest number of first-time buyers in the first two months of the year since 2005.

Lending to house owners fell - contributing to an overall dip in house-garden lending - while mortgage lending also rose.

A total of 84,969 loans were advanced to first-time buyers in February, up on 15,500 in January and 10,000 of the same time last year. By value, loans to first-time buyers totalled £2.6 billion, the same amount as the previous month, but 1% higher than in February 2012 (£2.5 billion).

First-time buyers represented 17.4% of all house purchase loans in February. This was the sixth consecutive month that the number of first-time buyers fell, regardless of the market's overall response to mortgage first-time buyers.

Analysts of these figures today also suggested that the market was marginally more favourable to first-time buyers in February. First-time buyers typically borrowed smaller amounts in February than in January, both in absolute terms and in relation to their income. First-time buyers typically borrowed 17.5% less than average in February, down from 2.2 times in January, while the average loan to value ratio increased slightly.

That is likely to be associated with a shift towards the purchase of less expensive properties by first-time buyers, with a small increase in the proportion of first-time buyers buying properties over £200,000.

Lending to house owners fell in February for the third consecutive month.

Car insurance premiums continue to fall

CAR INSURANCE premiums continue to fall according to the latest figures from the AA. British Insurance Premium Index, covering the first quarter of 2010.

The average quoted premium for an annual complete policy for a motorist or policyholder in the AA Insurance and Warranty, at 2010-11, is £1,151.45, down from the first quarter of 2009.

The figures are recorded by averaging the first cheapest quotes for a range of provisions from a motorist's policy, against a fixed basket of risks.

James Douglas, director of AA Insurance, says that the continuing falling trend will be noted next by a motorist who, over the past three years, has faced some of the biggest premium increases ever recorded by the Index.

"Our insurers are less willing to know the level of risk for all the wrong reasons or reasons attributed to business premises against their own," he says. "They have in place a policy clause that would be covered down to my policy of last year's policy, down to my policy of last year's policy, down to my policy of last year's policy, down to my policy of last year's policy."

But there are other changes that I expect to help that decreased premium trend," Mr

Douglas says

On 1 April, the first part of the Legal Aid, Rehousing and Financial Services Act 2009 (LASFC) were introduced, with a three-hour limit on the search and so on.
